Introduction

There are a variety of reporting tools and mapping modules for Census data that allow for exploration of single variables across multiple spatial units.¹ The goal of this resource, by contrast, is to provide an easily interpreted compilation of data on multiple variables (91) for single spatial units (Electoral Divisions). An advantage of this approach is that the reader can, via a single source, easily develop a picture of the overall defining characteristics of each individual Electoral Division and how it compares with the Authority Area it is contained within and the State as a whole.

Two pages are allocated to each of the 74 EDs in Cork City and the EDs are organised alphabetically. The first page contains a satellite image and street map of the ED and its boundaries, along with an overall analysis of its socio-economic characteristics. Data tables representing the themes of 'Age and Marital Status' and 'Families' are also included on this page. The second page contains a series of data tables representing the following themes: 'Household Composition', 'Education', 'Health', 'Migration and Ethnicity', 'Housing', 'Employment' and 'Transport'. In addition to the statistical data for each ED, tables also include averages for Cork City and Ireland to allow for comparison with the larger scale picture. Due to Electoral Divisions having diverse areas and populations, the statistics reported have been standardised to percentages to maximise comparability with each other, as well as with Cork City and Ireland more generally.

EDs were originally created by the Poor Law Unions in the mid-nineteenth century and are 'the smallest legally defined administrative areas in the State for which Small Area Population Statistics (SAPS) are published from the Census.'² Prior to 2006, Electoral Divisions were the smallest spatial unit available for Census data reporting. Subsequently, new 'Small Area' units were developed, that each containing roughly 100 housing units. These units were utilised in maps throughout Section I due to the level of detail they can provide; however, due to their large number (>600 in Cork City), variability and non-administrative status, they were deemed unsuitable for smaller scale profiling in this Section.

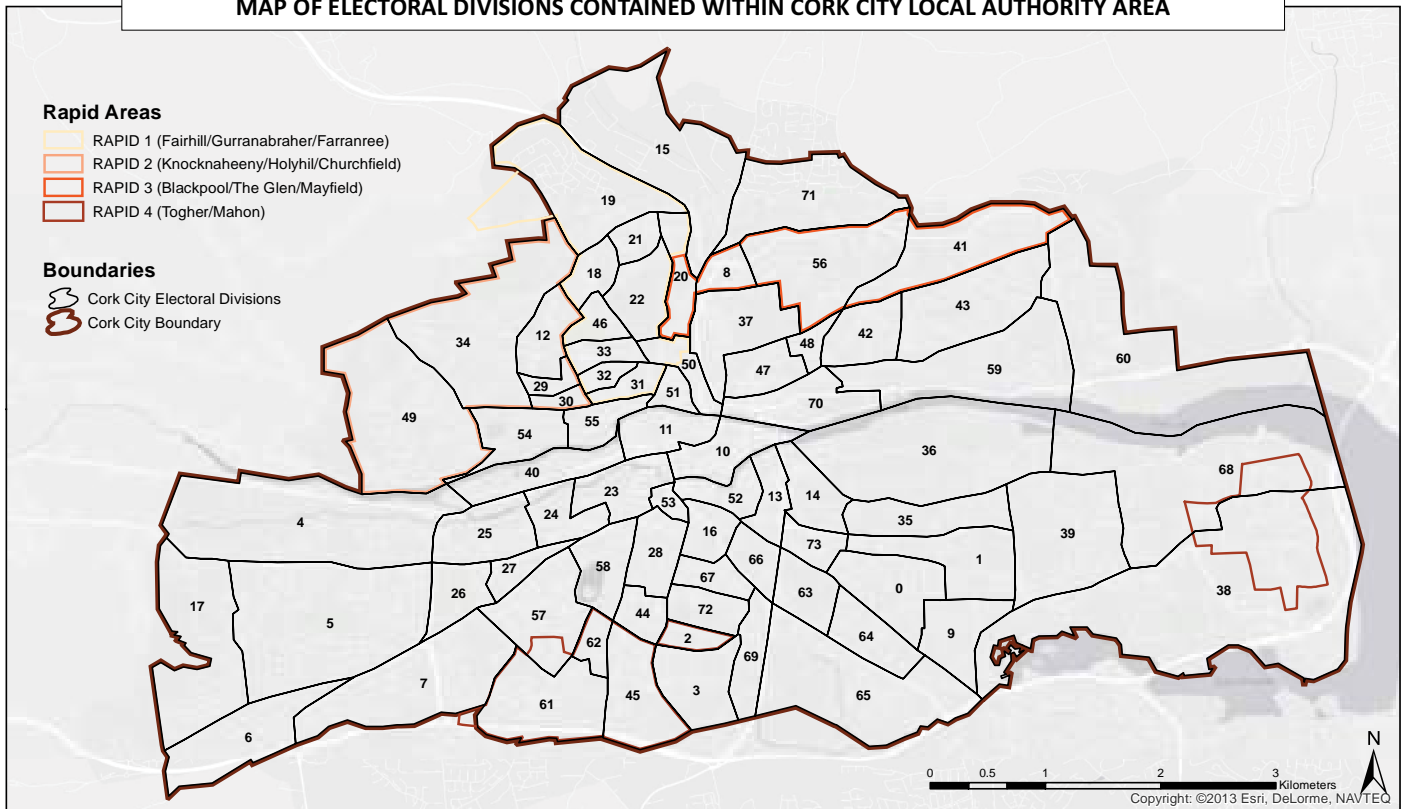

Overleaf is a map indicating the location of each Electoral Division in Cork City Local Authority Area, along with an index of their titles.

NOTE: 'Absolute difference' and 'Relative difference' are terms that are used throughout this section. As an explanation, the 'Absolute difference' between 50 and 100 is 50 - the two numbers subtracted from each other. The 'Relative difference' here is 100% - 100 is twice as large as 50 (i.e.100% greater than 50).

1 The All-Island Research Observatory's mapping module located at airo.ie and Pobal's mapping module (pobal.ie) are both useful examples.

‘Bishopstown E’ Electoral Division (7)

Satellite Image and Street Map of ‘Bishopstown E’ Electoral Division (Source of Boundary Files: Ordnance Survey Ireland)

Key Points

- This Electoral Division contains a total of 3,072 persons living in 1,209 households
- It contains the greatest proportion of households built from 1961 to 1990 (81.8%)
- Houses in this ED are more likely to be owner occupied without a mortgage, with this being the case for 49.3% of households (32.5% average for Cork City)
- The Old Age Dependency Ratio of this ED (32.1) is significantly higher than Cork City (21.4). This is evidenced by the fact that the proportion of the population aged between 65 and 84 (19.8%) is significantly higher than the average for Cork City (13.5%)
- With 7.9% of the population classified as unemployed, this Electoral Division features a relative difference of 34.7% below the Cork City average (Absolute Difference of -4.2%)
- With 34.7% of those aged 15 or over in possession of a third level qualification, this Electoral Division features a relative difference of 42.8% above the Cork City average (Absolute Difference of 10.4%)
- This ED contains the second greatest proportion of persons of non-EU nationality in Cork City (13.4% versus a 3.7% average for Cork City). A possible explanation for this is that there are foreign nationals in this ED who are working in Cork University Hospital nearby

‘Gillabbey A’ Electoral Division (23)

Satellite Image and Street Map of ‘Gillabbey A’ Electoral Division (Source of Boundary Files: Ordnance Survey Ireland)

Key Points

- This Electoral Division contains a total of 1,941 persons living in 799 households and its proximity to the City Centre and University College Cork has had a clear impact on its socio-economic profile
- Over one third of persons aged over 15 (36.8%) are classified as students and almost two-thirds (65.6%) of residences are rented from a private landlord
- The population increased by 18.4% (302 persons) between 2006 and 2011 and the number of households increased by 31% (189 Houses)
- It features the fourth lowest age dependency ratio (17.6%) of all EDs, likely attributable to its proximity to the City Centre as a source of employment and the University as a place to study
- It contains the third highest proportion of single persons (76%), which is interconnected with its age profile
- Over one half (52.1%) of residences are classified as flats or apartments. This has likely had an influence on the fact that the ED contains the third greatest proportion of households comprising two-or-more persons who are unrelated (32%), which is over two and a half times the average for Cork City (255.6% higher)
- With 39.3% of those aged fifteen or over in possession of a third level qualification, this Electoral Division features a Relative difference of 61.7% above the Cork City average (Absolute difference is 15%)
- Residents of this ED are significantly less likely to be unemployed (7.5% versus a 12.1% average for Cork City)
- 22% of the population are persons not of Irish (or UK) nationality
- Almost two thirds (65%) of the population travel to work, school or college on foot or by bicycle, making them almost twice as likely to do so than the average resident of Cork City.

‘Sunday’s Well B’ Electoral Division (55)

Satellite Image and Street Map of ‘Sunday’s Well B’ Electoral Division (Source of Boundary Files: Ordnance Survey Ireland)

Key Points

- This Electoral Division contains a total of 727 persons living in 374 households.
- Almost one in three dwellings (33.2%) are classified as flats/apartments and over one half (55.9%) are rented from a private landlord. This is likely connected to the EDs proximity to University College Cork and its associated buildings
- The Youth Dependency Ratio in this ED (8.8%) is less than half that of Cork City (20.9%). This indicates that a very small proportion of this ED are aged under 15 years of age
- Almost one in four persons in this ED (24.4%) were resident outside Ireland one year prior to the date of the Census. This is likely connected to the fact that 26.5% of the population of this ED consists of persons not of Irish (or UK) nationality
- There has been a significant increase in the proportion of the population of this Electoral Division who are of non-Irish nationality between 2006 and 2011, with an absolute increase of 5.8%
- With 36.1% of those aged 15 or over in possession of a third level qualification, this Electoral Division features a Relative difference of 48.6% above the Cork City average (Absolute difference is 11.8%)
- Residents of this ED are more likely to travel to work, school or college via sustainable modes of transport. Over half (55.2%) travel on foot or by bicycle and 12.5% travel via public transport, both of which are significantly above the average for Cork City
- With 54.3% of households not in ownership of a motor car, this Electoral Division features a Relative difference of 70.8% above the Cork City average (Absolute difference is 22.5%).
